Out and About

This year sure is flying by. Hope you all had a enjoyable and relaxing Easter Break

I had the pleasure of going to the Toowoomba Swap it was a good day and considering the cancellations and date changes over the last few years it was good.

The stall holders were down on previous years although I think it should be back to normal next year.

This weekend we have "RockyNats" I am sure all attending will have a great time

Supercars calendar: 12 rounds confirmed for 2024 season

The 2024 Supercars season will begin at the Mount Panorama Circuit with the Bathurst 500.

The race will be part of a two-week celebration at the famous track, joining the Bathurst 12 Hour event.

The Bathurst 1000 retains its traditional October slot on the calendar.

Popular events in Sandown and the Gold Coast will remain for 2024, while Adelaide will host the season finale again.

Taupō will notably host its first-ever Supercars race in April as the series returns to New Zealand.

A new format will also debut in 2024 — Super400.

It will comprise two separate 200km races held on either day, with mandatory refuelling implemented.

Sydney and Taupō will hold their events under this format next year.

Two races from 2023 have been removed from the 2024 calendar — the Newcastle 500 and SuperSprint at The Bend.

Supercars 2024: Full calendar, schedule

Event	Dates
Bathurst 500	February 23-25
Melbourne SuperSprint	March 21-24
Taupō Super400	April 19-21
Perth SuperSprint	May 17-19
Darwin Triple Crown	June 14-16
Townsville 500	July 5-7
Sydney SuperNight	July 19-21
Tasmania SuperSprint	August 16-18
Sandown 500	September 20-22
Bathurst 1000	October 10-13
Gold Coast 500	October 25-27
Adelaide 500	November 14-17

Gen3 Supercars explained: Design, specifications and impact of new car ruleset

A new Supercars era is officially underway.

The Gen3 ruleset is debuting for the 2023 season, as the touring series navigates one of the largest changes in its history.

Following Holden's withdrawal from the competition last year, the Chevrolet Camaro and Ford Mustang are the two cars of choice for this campaign.

The Sporting News takes a look at the new Gen3 design and ruleset ahead of the Bathurst 1000.

Gen3 Supercars design

Both the Camaro and Mustang are noticeably different from the previous Gen2 design, with greater similarity to their 'road-going equivalents'.

The 2023 cars have been crafted "with an eye on increased road relevance and improved racing," according to Supercars.com.

The design is similar to that of a two-door muscle car, combined with a clean-sheet chassis configuration.

Gen3 Supercars specifications

Gen3 marks the biggest change to the Australian racing series since the implementation of V8-powered Commodores and Ford Falcons in the 1990s.

To ensure the new cars act more like road cars, Supercars have intended to reduce downforce by more than 65 per cent.

This also places more weight on a driver's skill and leads to more overtaking opportunities.

There is also significant change when it comes to engine capacity - gone are the days of 5.0 litre V8 engines.

The Camaro runs on a single camshaft General Motors engine, with two valves per cylinder.

Ford's engine, on the other hand, features four camshafts with four valves per cylinder.

The stick shift gear system - which was a popular component of the Gen2 cars - continues to feature in the new model.
